Dear Mr. Smith:

How would it be to mention in your Report books on United States coins printed during this year. The only one of which I can think is that of Hetrick on Civil War Tokens - possibly you can think of others.

Also, how would it do for the Committee to recommend that the Government strike $2.50 gold pieces; or, if not that, release from its vaults $2.50 gold pieces so that people throughout the country may be able to use these for Christmas presents? As the situation stands, they are unobtainable at any bank, or those asking for them are charged 25¢ or 50¢ premium. I feel confident that the Government knows of this hold-up and it should do something to remedy the condition. The last $2.50 gold pieces were coined in 1915.

I am enclosing, herewith, correspondence with a man who has one of the large size Life Saving medals in gold. I am inclined to think that this is extremely rare. I should be glad to have you return the correspondence eventually, as I want to keep it with the records of Life Saving medals.

I am in receipt of a letter from The American Numismatic Society in New York City stating that you have an United States Life Saving medal of large size in gold which you would like to dispose of. I am really quite interested. Is there any way I could see the medal? You may have some hesitancy about forwarding it to a stranger like me, could I suggest its being sent to the museum of The American Numismatic Society in care of Mr. Wood, the Curator, where I could view it. I would also like to have from you some idea of what you would sell it for. It would be in safe hands if sent to the Society and after you and I have agreed upon a sale, Mr. Wood could be authorized by you to turn it over to me.

Dear Madam:

Your letter of November 28th, addressed to Mr. Howland Wood has been sent to me for reply, as Mr. Wood had thought I might be interested in the little book of coin tables.

The offer of four pounds made by an English collector is much beyond the value it would be to me in my library of numismatic books. I therefore return it to you by registered mail.

December 29, 1926

Mr. Elliott Smith,
26th Street and East River,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Elliott:

I have written the Director of the Mint to send me as soon after the first of the year as possible the number of coins struck by the Philadelphia and French Mints for 1926.

I am herewith sending you a brief description of the commemorative coins issued during the year, also mention of one already authorized for 1927. I have refrained from commenting very much on either of these. You will find further information about them in the Numismatist, pages 572 and 615.

One point you might bring out (although it has already been brought forth) is to the effect that Congress is overdoing the matter of getting out these commemorative coins for all sorts of minor events. You will note, in one of the references that I have given you to the Numismatist, that the Committee of Weights and Measures has appreciated this and has turned down some bills advocating coinage of a local nature, considering that the special coinage should be for events of general interest.

If you think of any other lines to work up, let me know and I will try to give you the information.

Of the Sesquicentennial quarter-eagles there were 200,226 struck; of the Sequi half-dollars there were 1,000,528 struck; and of the Oregon Trail there were 148,085 struck - unless some were struck during this present month.

Very truly yours,

Curator

The Commemorative coins issued during the year are as follows:

The Sesquicentennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence was commemorated by a two and one-half dollar gold piece and a silver half-dollar. They were designed by J. R. Sinnock, mint engraver. They are both disappointing on account of their low relief.

The first piece shows a standing figure of Liberty, holding torch in one hand; a scroll (the Declaration of Independence) in the other hand. On the reverse is Independence Hall. As the law requires a certain number of mottoes to be placed on all coins, a piece the small size of a two and one-half dollar gold piece is perforce loaded down with lettering, much to the confusion of the designer as well as to the design, one hundred and eleven letters and figures being on this small coin.

The half-dollar shows profiles of Washington and Coolidge, the first instance of a living president on our coinage. The way was paved, however, by the portrait of Governor Kilby on the Alabama half-dollar of 1921. The reverse shows the Liberty Bell and the edge inscription on a raised border.

The Oregon Trail half-dollar, designed by Laura Gardin Fraser, shows on one side an ox-drawn covered wagon being driven towards the setting sun, and on the other side a standing figure of an Indian with blanket and head-dress, a bow in his right hand and his left hand extended; a map of the United States forms a background. The whole design is bold and well executed.

Another half-dollar authorized, but which will not be executed until 1927, is the Vermont-Fennington half-dollar. The design is by Charles Keck and shows a large head of Ira Allen, founder of Vermont, and a catamount on the other side.

Dear Sir:

I am herewith sending you a number of coins struck by the United States during 1926. I only this morning got the December report from Washington. The totals are the number of pieces for each denomination and I think you can easily make out your report. In the corner of the sheet are the pieces struck for various foreign governments, all being South or Central American republics.

If I should get in time the more detailed report from Washington, which includes the number struck by the branch mints, I will mail it to you.

Please return this paper to me when you are through with it.

Dear Mr. Smith:

I am herewith enclosing the report of the United States Mint, of the coinage made by the various mints during 1930. If you should care to do so, you can note the fact that cents only were made at the Denver Mint. Altogether, in all mints, 224,000,000 cents were made. This appears to be an astonishing figure, but 277,000,000 cents were made in 1929. The reason probably for this is that vast numbers of Indian head cents have been taken out of circulation by ignorant people who think that they are worth a premium and that the government was calling them in.

Sincerely yours,

Secretary.

Dear Mr. Smith:

Re: United States Committee

The coinage for the three United States mints for the calendar year 1933 is as follows:

Double Eagles	445,500
Eagles	312,500

These were made at the Philadelphia mint and the coinage ceased during the month of May.

Oregon Trail Half Dollars(Denver mint)	5,250
Standard half dollars(San Francisco ")	1,786,000

The last previous coinage of half dollars was in 1929. In connection with the Oregon Trail half dollars the one made this year makes the fourth variety. In 1926 they were made at the Philadelphia and San Francisco mints, in 1928 at the Philadelphia mint, and now we have one from the Denver mint.

One cent pieces to the amount of 20,560,000 were made at the Philadelphia and Denver mints.

From the above statements we see that the number of coins made during 1933 was comparatively small. Our mints, however, made coins for four foregin countries, as follows:

Panama	- - - -Silver	- - 900 fine	- - 1/2 Balboa	- - 120,000 pieces
